AQUA ENERGIZERS are perfect for aquariums, fish tanks, farm ponds and natural waters like rivers and lakes. Structured Water Structured water (SW) is a term derived from the Latin term "structura". The Latin word, which means "structure", refers to the tendency of water to arrange itself in a specific structure (pockets of concentrated water) due to the different forces acting on it. The term "structured water" was created to make explicit the point that, as a result of natural forces, the most balanced solution of water is not ordinary water, which is a dispersion of molecules of water in an electric and magnetic neutral environment, but the SW. Water structure is created by the gravitational force of the earth, the centrifugal force of water molecules in a rotating system, the vertical and horizontal pressure of water in an environment with a lot of matter, and also the pressure of water on solid or liquid surfaces. According to F.C. Guinn: "We know that different liquids, when allowed to stand, will separate into layers of different thickness. Water separates by its own weight into a surface film, and then a layer of moderate thickness, and then a deeper layer which is the bulk of the liquid." This is called density separation, and it is the physical cause of the formation of water bodies and water pockets in the earth and under the earth, and also explains the formation of natural man-made ponds. These SW water bodies and ponds are what we call aquifers, which are water-filled underground hollows. When you see a natural water pocket, you are seeing the remains of what has been called an "aquifer". The deep ground water aquifers consist of three layers: an outer layer (the first or most superficial layer), a middle (second layer) and an inner layer (third layer). The third layer, or the most bottom one, consists of a "spring" of water which is very pure and dynamic water; this is the layer in which the AQUA ENERGIZERS are situated. The AQUA ENERGIZER, patented by F.C. Guinn, was the first device that could replace the natural "spring" of water in deep, natural water bodies with a state of well-being for the environment, and for human beings.
